Wet and Dry Fights
Col. Donovan Suggests
Will Mussolini Fall?
Does a Tariff Protect?

By Arthur Brisbane
PRIMARY CONTESTS
throughout the country involve many of them, bitter wet-dry fights.

Some thirty optimists tell you with confidence:
"Prohibition is on the downhill road and will soon come to an end."
They will grow old, gray and die, with prohibition still in the Constitution. To imagine that 36 out of 48 states would vote to take it out is folly.

Colonel Donovan, better known as "Fighting Bull," is said to have a plan.

Since prohibition cannot be taken out of the Constitution, he would put in another amendment, nullifying the prohibition amendment. It would give the federal government control of liquor transportation, with state and local governments controlling its sale.

Prohibitionists say that is like suggesting an amendment to nullify the woman suffrage amendment by letting only three-legged women vote.

George Seligman, able newspaper man, returns from Europe predicting "Mussolini's fall from power, with his Fascist government, trembling about its ears, within a year."

Revolution will do the job, says
Mr. Seligman, and Mussolini's enemies at home are preparing it. He thinks Mussolini might plunge Italy into war, to save off the revolution.

Other rulers have done that,
and successfully.

France evidently is convinced that her first trouble will come from Italy and seeks alternately to placate and terrify the impacable and forever terrified Mussolini.

Concerning that powerful leader, the marvel is that he has endured so long the terrific strain of gigantic responsibility.
And a greater marvel is that,
with absolute power and so many attacks on his life, he has not so moderately.

If you doubt that a tariff can protect labor, ask Henry Ford when he returns from France.
He used to "assemble" cars in France, sending the various parts finished, putting them together. Hereafter he will manufacture the entire car in France.
INSIDE the French high tariff wall.

Thus, when a Frenchman buys a Ford car, he will buy nothing but FRENCH LABOR with a small payment for Ford's brains.

Free traders might meditate on that.

Until recently a public school in Oklahoma City had 1000 pupils absorbing knowledge.

Now the pupils are gone and in the front yard a "gusher" is spouting 50,000 barrels of oil a day. The well belongs to the city and will pay for schools able to educate many times 1000 pupils.

It's a ought to be a happy country, since our only complaint is that we have TOO MUCH of everything.

Somebody has bought a picture for $55, and experts say a genuine Rubens is hidden under the cheap outside painting, and is worth $25,000.

It may be a genuine Rubens, and yet not WORTH more than $55 or 55 cents.

Pictures by Rubens in the Louvre, showing fat ladies in a royal procession, are worth less than 55 cents.

On the other hand, Rubens' picture of the crucifixion of St. Peter, head downward, given by him to the little church opposite the Louvre in Cologne in which his father and mother lived, has value not to be computed in dollars.

Ted Gelskind, held in Louisville, Ky., suspected of murdering Jake Lingie, Chicago crime reporter, says he didn't kill him, didn't know him, never saw him, and is added.

"Except helping a jail break at Rising Sun, Ind. they haven't got a thing on me."
This interesting product of modern civilization adds casually:

"I have been in the liquor-running and hi-jack racket for almost two years, but I didn't hang out with Chicago gangs. Didn't know Lingie, nor Zuta, nor any of that outfit."
About Lingie, the gangster very probably tells the truth.
Whoever shot the Tribune reporter had probably never seen him, and asked no questions.
For a few papers of cocaine and $500 you can buy the murder of anybody "hot on the spot."

As for the supply of drugs, that will run short, under the present system. Detectives arrested an "outlaw" baggage master on the big liner Europa yesterday, as he came off the

Shamrock Disabled, Forced to Quit

MILLION ROAR TRIBUTE 40,000 MARCHERS

SHAMROCK V BUTLER WINS DISABLED AND QUILTS SENATE FIGHT

Vanderbilt Goes on to Win, but May Insist on the Race
Being Sailed Over

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V was forced today to quit the third scheduled race for the America's Cup 40 minutes after a fine start at 11:40 a. m.

Her mainsail collapsed when the halyard parted.
But Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of the American defender Enterprise, can decline to accept a victory after finishing the course, according to Capt.
Edward P. Thomas, Newport harbor master and aquatic authority, who said:

"Under the rules, Enterprise would be declared winner, but generally is considered by the committee before making an official declaration. I believe Vanderbilt will insist the race be sailed over again."

Sir Thomas' Shamrock IV won the first race in 1920 under almost identical conditions off Sandy Hook. The defender Enterprise's first halyard parted. Shamrock IV sailed out the race, as was her privilege, and was declared the winner despite Lipton's protest that he did not want to win in that way. She also won the second race.
Then Enterprise won in a row and kept the cup. The series was best three out of five. It is now four out of seven.

Enterprise continued smoothly
after the mishap to the Shamrock today, rounded the half way mark at 1:14 p. m. and started back in the 15-mile run before the wind.
Vanderbilt broke out his spinner and big balloons, apparently desiring to finish as soon as possible.

Passing Through Lanes of Cheering Thousands

A THROG ESTIMATED AT TWO MILLION, from all over the country, jammed Boston today to pay tribute to Daniel Webster on his 100th birthday. Participants in the parade, which wound its way through the streets of Boston for hours, passed between lanes of cheering thousands. This picture shows the throng that crowded Tremont st. In politics a detective is your future shadow. The biggest laugh of all is that Mrs. McCormick's sleuths last Senator Nye on a miniature golf course. The Senator claimed it was a bird sanctuary.

Justice is a simple thing in New York City. First you violate it. Then you dispense it. Our advice to poor, honest boys is to save their bodies and to remember that Luther Burbank was a fish for confining his grafting to trees and cactus bushes.

We will believe that the peace conference in Geneva is on the level when Mussolini walks in with a bouquet of pansies in his hand.

250 FLOATS, 100 BANDS IN BRILLIANT PARADE

Tremendous Ovation for Heroes of War and the City's Distinguished Visitors

(Pictures on pages 3, 13, 14 and 15)

Boston's seven-hour Tercentenary parade, the most spectacular pageant in its 300 years of history, moved through the heart of the gayly decorated city this afternoon.

Along the 3 1/2-mile route a crowd estimated at between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 men, women and children roared tribute.

The clock on the Park st. church stood at two minutes past 12 when a bomb salute rocketed up from the Common, bugles flourished at the Arlington-Beacon sts. starting point, and the first of 40,000 marchers and 250 floats started along the route.

There was a drizzle of rain at the start, and clouds hung low over the city, but the threatening weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the city's greatest crowd, and shortly after noon patches of blue appeared overhead and the sun shone through.

THROUGH BLIZZARD

It was warm and humid marching weather.

Through the district where once the wilderness embraced the lardy founders of a nation and where today, hardly a tree loomed above the canopy, the gigantic procession commemorating the tercentenary of the founding of the Colony of the Bay moved through modern, decorated canyons of steel, brick and granite beneath a blizzard of white paper.

The brightening of the weather was like the brightening of the heart of Boston, scheduled to continue until dusk, with the crash of drums, the tramp of the marchers, the rumble of cannon.

An hour and a half after the start the parade moved on to the heart of Boston, scheduled to continue until dusk, with the crash of drums, the tramp of the marchers, the rumble of cannon.

BEAUTY, POMP AND SPLENDOR FEATURE BOSTON DAY PARADE

OVER THE TOP of Beacon Hill again, World War veterans, natty in their Legion uniforms, marched as of old again today in the Boston Day parade. Here they are over the top of Beacon Hill. Crowds thronged both sides of the street and State House steps cheering the veterans to the echo. (Staff photo.)

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY

PRAISING MR. HEARST for his unflinching loyalty and patriotism, Mayor Curley today bestowed upon him as the city's guest of honor a "constitutional big stick," while thousands of spectators in Tremont st. gave him an ovation. The presentation took place in the Court of Honor during the parade and was an impressive episode in a day filled with ceremonies that made other patriotic deeds of other patriots live again in cherished grandeur. Mr. Hearst, in accepting the handsome cane, declared he should always treasure it and the recollections of his visit. Mayor Curley had laid particular stress upon the publisher's patriotism in revealing a secret treaty aimed at his country.

THEY ALL HAD BOSTON DAY HATS to go with their high running spirits. Grandstand seats were never as good as curbstone cushions according to these youngsters, who were on the parade scene bright and early. The boys, Ross, McLaughlin, Angelo Passanese, Joseph Tringale, John and Joseph Passanese, left to right, all had their Boston Evening American Boston Day Hats of red, white and blue perched cockily on their heads in honor of the occasion. FROM FARAWAY. Miss Rose Wong, fairest member of Boston's Chinese colony, filled the role of "Maid of China." Attired in Chinese costume, she made a distinct hit with the thousands along the line of march. (Staff photo.)

NO WONDER HE SMILES. Governor Allen was all smiles as he rode over the line of march with Adjt.-Gen. Jesse Stevens, and well he might be for he had just received word that his wife had given birth to a baby girl at the Massachusetts General Hospital. It wasn't the vote but the baby that made him smile. (Staff photo.)

A SOLDIER IN THE MAKING. Lieut.-Gen. Edward L. Logan, marshal of the greatest parade in Boston's history, had his son riding along as an aid when the parade got under way. Already the junior member of the famous South Boston military family shows his leaning toward life, following in the gatha of his grandfather.

WHAT STATE G. O. P. DRY, WELL OILED MACHINE

IT RESULTS WILL CAUSE WIDE SPLIT

Cooldown and Elvies Victory Due to Division of or Illness of Rovers

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

The Republican party is dry and machine. Hence Butler, O'Connell and O'Brien chewed each other up. Hence Cooldown.

Democrats prefer a live candidate to an ill one who asks them not to vote for him. Hence Ely.

As the returns from the backward communities continued to trickle in at mid-day, the above seemed an accurate analysis of the results and the causes in one of the most extraordinary primary elections Massachusetts has ever seen.

William Morgan Butler, backed by the party machine and by the dry element with the determination to "rule or ruin," wins over the aggressive Ely, Draper by a margin of 10,000.

BELL OILED MACHINE

Organization was made to apply the methods that made him effective as the driving force in the old Withburn-Murray-Crane machine.

He spent generously. The machine politicians in practically every city and town were captured by him. Wet politicians and dry dealers joined hands for him, though the latter may not have known it.

He had on the one hand the polls who know how to get out the vote, on the other the churchmen who know how to sustain for their principal.

Draper campaigned on his own. His organization was personal, snappy, enthusiastic. He received a remarkable vote, which came from three elements in his party: the liberal disaffected with the evident evils of prohibition; the young gang who believe that party needs to be regenerated from within; and the independent who are convinced that Butler is an old-fashioned reactionary lost out in his ways to tackle unemployment and the other issues that require modern initiative.

REPUBLICAN SPLIT

The conditions which contributed to the result were confined to no one section of the State. Butler got the dry and machine vote everywhere; Draper got the independent Republican vote without variation. The result was a wedge in the Republican party which will remain wide open for years.

O'Brien and O'Connell, the latter too ill to have made an effective campaign, have a total vote of 90,000 on late returns from the polls. A Coolidge a total of 18,000. The two former divided the vote of the but and of the racial elements which presumably were attracted to them.

Coolidge polled the vote of Western Massachusetts despite the attempt of the Ely forces to swing their followers to elect him. The result for Lonsdale's advocacy of the former and their efforts to produce an "evenly balanced" ticket.

In Boston and in the other communities of similar racial extraction O'Brien and O'Connell split the vote. Coolidge, like Ely, carried also a quite strong support from the younger factions who resented the intrusion of the race issue.

WOUNDS WILL HEAL

Coolidge stands today in a favorable position. The fight within the Democratic party were contests of personal and personalities of rival leaders like Maxine Currier and former Mayor Fitzgerald and Lonsdale. Their wounds can be healed. Unlike the Republicans they were undivided on unhealed issues like prohibition.

The Democratic contest for Lieutenant-Governor exhibited the same result that produced the victory of Mr. Coolidge. O'Neil, Murphy and Murphy have pulled about 30,000 votes while Strabo Claggett, who appealed to the Democrats to nominate a ticket "not all green," as he described his leads from all but with only a total of 35,000 votes.

Butler's contest with other sections of the State saw a surprising manifestation of the independence of the younger element in politics. Mr. Currier was able to produce a substantial vote for his candidacy, but Ely, on the other hand, received the support of thousands of the younger element in politics who protest race issues and cry for recognition of the younger vote.

As the Democratic surge the news and challenge the nomination of a Coolidge, an Ely and possibly a Claggett to head their ticket in November, they will say they have been as "liberal" as were the Republicans and independent who supported Walsh and Smith two years ago.

Hurt in Four-Story Fall

Blindfolded, Mr. Ely, 32, was employed by the Appell Manufacturing Company, was seriously hurt, when he fell four stories to the ground while working on the building of the corporation yesterday afternoon.

Ely Beats Fitzgerald BY 30,366

per strength were not borne out by the returns.

Democratic victors were Joseph B. Ely of Westfield for governor; Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg for senator; and William J. Foley for district attorney of Suffolk County.

The victory of these three Democrats was matched by the accomplishment of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald in polling a huge vote in Boston after he had withdrawn from the race.

The Boston vote for Ely was 70,237, that of Fitzgerald, 58,718. Of the 1924 prospects in the State Ely polled 118,704, Fitzgerald 84,208 and Cummings 12,844.

BOSTON FOR DRAPER

Draper carried Boston over Butler by the close vote of 14,832 to 14,675, where, the machine was working against him.

Draper carried Cambridge by 38 votes. The result was: Draper 20,017; Butler 20,017.

Republican senatorial candidates carried their home cities. Lonsdale, "Boss" Gillis, polled around 20,000 votes, also carried his city of Newburyport.

Fitchburg gave almost its entire support to Coolidge, its former mayor.

Coolidge received 10,075 votes in a contest a combination total of 141 for his four opponents.

Westfield, Ely's home town, gave all but 22 votes of its 287 votes for its favorite son.

Allen was an easy winner swamping his opponent, former Mayor Michael C. O'Neil.

Strabo V. Claggett of Newton retained his lead over his nearest opponent, Mayor Michael C. O'Neil of Everett, for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth House. Claggett's lead was more than 7,000.

Alonso B. Cook, state auditor, again resisted the onslaught on his defense and repulsed Mayor Joseph N. Carriere of Fitchburg. In this fight, with the aid of the reported, Cook led Carriere 17,335 to 8,626.

The Republican State treasurer, fight developed into a hot three-cornered contest between Butler of Medford, Charles L. Burrill of Boston and Russell D. Chase of Longmeadow.

Interest centered around Burrill, but Chase, who carried the lead with a vote of 50,359 in 1911 precincts out of 1469, Burrill received 47,792 and Burrill 47,019 in the same precincts.

THREE-CORNERED

The contest for Democratic secretary of State developed into a close fight between Chester J. O'Brien and George S. Cummings of Boston. Arthur C. Flynn was a dangerous contender.

Mayor P. Hurley of Cambridge had built up a commanding lead for State Treasurer.

The Democratic nomination for Attorney-General was won by Harold W. Sullivan.

BIG CITIES WEAK

Failure of the industrial centers where Draper secured large majorities but his vote was accounted for his defeat, his supporters say.

Lewell was expected to come out stronger while an even break was expected between Draper and Burrill. Instead Draper's vote was 1,000 less.

Worcester, too, the home county of Draper, was a disappointment, later returns indicating the majority for the Hopkinton man to be 1,000 less.

Lynn, instead of helping to pile up a majority actually went the other way. The vote here was Butler 4,481, Draper 3,391.

While the major Democratic contests dealt in personalities, the Republican senatorial differences reached issues. These latter, it was expected, would take a long time to heal.

Rep. Britten's Rival in Party Sacrifice

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—In order that the Republican Party might have a Congressman from the Ninth Illinois District, may be re-elected without effective opposition, the Democratic candidate, Thomas H. Ryan, withdrew from the race, as was announced today.

Clubwomen Told to Help Solve Unemployment

By NANCY BREWSTER

If clubwomen are to make a real contribution to community progress, they must seriously study industrial conditions and unemployment; they must make constructive suggestions, second district clubwomen in conference at Plymouth were told by the vice-president of the general federation.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton addressed the presidents conference conducted by Mrs. George E. Goss, second district director of the state federation, and warned the women against too much of the cultural and not enough of the industrial in club programs.

Clubs cannot exist as in the past and clubwomen cannot refuse to take on the mantle of modern consideration, she stated. Mrs. Poole urged the clubwomen and the guests of the first district to "know" Massachusetts industrialism, to get behind progressive movements with a view to economic betterment, to become public factors in the solution of one of the most vital problems—unemployment.

Cultural programs are necessary, Mrs. Poole told the women. "But as clubwomen and part of an important and comprehensive body of women, we must get out of the past and into the future of the economic, industrial and social pattern of daily life if we want to really play that part in the solution of conditions and problems which effect existence of millions of people in every walk of life."

Mrs. Poole was one of several prominent Bay State leaders to attend and address the conference, an innovation in the district. Ever ingenious, Mrs. Gossley this year promoted congeniality as the big thing of the conference. She mixed first district presidents with second district presidents, gave acquaintance with old acquaintances, so that the more than a hundred clubwomen were present really got to know one another.

After introduction of Mrs. Gossley was the miniature and original club institute session. Pertinent club questions written on slips of paper and assigned were read by clubwomen and answered to them offered by the audience.

The clubwomen, however, refused to discuss the possible influence of clubwomen on the growing cigarette habit.

The question, "Should not the women's clubs use their influence against the growing cigarette habit?" was ignored by the body and Mrs. Gossley proceeded to another question.

One way to promote good fellowship and friendship was to say "hello" to every club member, whether known or not, a woman of the audience said.

To the question, "What program have the greatest general interest when the women's club membership is the cross-section of the town's social strata?" American Home and Community Service was given as the solution.

The audience as a whole replied a vehement and firm "yes" to the query, "Is it worthwhile to maintain a woman's club?"

Mrs. Robert S. Wallace, president of the Wollaston Woman's Club, maintained that clubwomen can be educated to the use of a bulletin board upon which may be written such information as now comes under the regular business season.

WOOLEN FROCKS are first on the list of fall school supplies. From the tiniest kindergarten to the boarding school girl—wool frocks are the smart uniforms.

IT IS hardly necessary to say that simplicity remains the golden rule for children's clothes—we have reiterated that point so often. Yet you will be interested to know that some of the subtle elaboration of adult modes has been elaborated every day and dress-up fashions for the young.

PLEATS, contrasting color schemes, little lingerie touches, buttons and embroidery find their way to the small frock whether of silk or woolen. Full skirts and a moderately low placed belt line make the youthful silhouette.

IN WOOLEN frocks, knitted fabrics, wool crepe, jersey and serge are favored for the majority. Several excellent types are a knitted jumper with a jaunty bolero and matching turtleneck; a jumper frock with feminine frilled broadcloth blouse; another bolero style frock which to contrast pleasantly with a light green crepe blouse. This bolero has three-quarter length sleeves, which show off the lacing on the sleeves of the blouse.

THE SMART and practical dress pictured has the double advantage of being both a coat dress and a jumper. Of red wool, double-breasted front, tag, with self-covered buttons, belt fastened with metal buckle, and two all pockets, it is worn over separate blouse of white linen, its turn-over collar and cuffs edged in finely pleated embroidery. The hat worn is of solid, with narrow turn-down brim, two small feathered birds perched on entwined ribbons about the crown.

OTHER FLOURES may be worn with this little frock, of course. All the embellishing it does these days is not exclusive with adult wardrobes alone. The feeling for smart color harmonies pervades the younger mode as much as it does the older one.

IT IS not a bad idea to have personal cards engraved for your children. These will be very useful for gifts and little social uses during the winter season. It quite thrills a child, too.

AIR SHOW HERE FOR LEGION GIGANTIC

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Plans for seven days of concentrated aerial activity at Boston Airport during the week of the American Legion convention were announced today by the Legion aviation committee in charge.

Officially termed the Legion Air Show, Boston's air week will be presented under auspices of the city of Boston's park department and sponsorship of the 1930 American Legion aviation committee.

Beginning October 4, each day will have its program of aerial thrills, and the presence of more than 100 visiting Army, National Guard and Navy planes from all parts of the country.

Plans for a contest among women flyers of the country, to be known as the "Miss America of the Air" contest, were formulated. Mrs. Mary Bacon, of Brookline, "99" and Wing and Prop Club member, was appointed to invite every good woman flyer to fly here.

LINDY COMING

Five sponsored Ford plane officially will open the meet when they cruise in formation over the city.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Landburgh, Capt. Frank M. Hawks, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and other celebrities of the air will be in view, with every possible bit of stunting, according to officials.

"War Pilot's Day," October 8, will be combined with Army and National Guard Day, with a night aerial attack on the city, will be another feature of the show. "The flightless Los Angeles" will fly over the city on one of the days, assisting the navy planes, and that which will arrive in time for the convention.

Maj. Louis K. Bouswell, commandant national guard his unit, Capt. E. Stanley Dick and Capt. Hilding Carlson and several others comprise the committee in charge while the commercial operators and army at the airport have representation on the general committee.

Spent races for all types and sizes of ships, accuracy landings, balloon busting, bombs dropping, parachute jumps, and other spectacular events will be held every afternoon. The entire program will be broadcast on an as yet to be determined station with the regular broadcast news.

Arrangements will be made to broadcast parts of the show every day, along with a public address system on the field to keep spectators informed.

"In planning this gigantic air show for Boston," said Maj. Bouswell, "we will endeavor to make it of national importance. If such can be brought about, there is no question that the only thing ever seen like the seven-day show will be the National Air Races. We will keep every event and all flyers strictly under control, and have our show on a safety first, last and always."

River of Beer Flows As Dry Agents Raid Brewery

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 17 (AP)

A foamy river of beer swept through the streets surrounding a brewery here last night after a raid by prohibition agents, who seized 10,000 gallons of beer and arrested nine men. Just who pulled the bung that started the flow of beer is not clear. The flow was stopped by the agents after a search, headed by Jack Dunne, of West New York, N. J., arrived on scene and said a signpost preventing the destruction of the beer had been obtained.

Life Was a Misery

SHIPPING DROVE WHALES FROM NEW ENGLAND

The great increase in marine traffic off the American coast is responsible for the decline of the whaling industry in New England, according to Capt. David Dedrick, chief of the Pacific Whaling Company's fleet, who is here in connection with the exhibition that company is making for educational purposes of the 55-foot, 68-ton, sea monster alongside Mechanics building in Huntington ave.

Captain Dedrick, who is an authority on whaling, gave some interesting and little known facts about the livelihood of the deep. One is that they prefer the colder waters of the Arctic and Antarctic, but are found in all oceans. They prefer seasons where there is a plentiful supply of shrimp and small fish, as the throat opening of a whale is comparatively small. The mouth, however, is large enough to hold a horse. Captain Dedrick said "Whales from whaling are one of the most edible of foods, and 20 to 40 pounds of the finest homeless steaks are taken from the section lost under the eye. It is a great delicacy in the Scandinavian countries, in Japan and Africa, but does not seem to appeal to the American palate. If it is properly prepared, it is said to be as good from the finest beef, and that it has the added advantage of being the only meat that does not cause a toxic condition in the human system.

"The average whale is cowardly and turns tail and dives if one of a school is attacked, but some of the sperm whales are so ferocious when wounded that they will attack the killer boat. A whale is hit in the region of the heart with the perforated harpoon, a whale will huddle for from 10 to 20 hours, hauling a powerful boat through the water at the rate of 15 miles an hour. 'Alme's' the whale being shown here, was landed only after a battle lasting 14 hours, in which I nearly lost my life.

"There are 37 species of whales, of which the sperm is the largest and the porpoise the smallest. Only seven types have teeth, the balance have baleens, a sort of long elastic-like growth, and it is this that furnishes a whalebone used in many industries."

HUB FAVORITE AT WILBUR

An old favorite of Boston playgoers will be found in the supporting company of Jesse Cougle in "Twelfth Night" at the Wilbur. He is Walter Kingsford, who from 1921 to 1923, was one of the leading members of the Jewett Repertory Company. On his present visit, Mr. Kingsford will be seen in the role of Sir Toby Belch, the "character" cut by Shakespeare from the same pattern as furnished Falstaff—a hilarious jolly toper. Since his days with the Jewett Company, Mr. Kingsford has appeared in number of interesting roles. He was in the revival five years ago of "Conquering Jove for Love." He was in the first connected series of O'Neill one-acts given known as "The S. S. Glencairn." He was in the modern dress version of "Huckleberry" that raised conflictive problems in New York. He played in "The Constant Wife" with Ethel Barrymore, in "Twelve Thousand" with Rialto and Mary Ellis. As Sam, in "Papa's Boy" and "So to Bed," Mr. Kingsford scored success, as he also the role with his appearance in "The Criminal Code."

Mr. Kingsford is an Englishman and first came to this country in a Granville Barker company in play "Shaw's 'Fanny First Day'."

Stage Who's Who

Even though she was born in Pennsylvania—distinguished otherwise as the birthplace of Nellie Revell and the former home of Joe Whiskey.

Mary Murray has moved rapidly upward in the theatrical business, until she now has the lead in "Apogee Strips," the comedy at the Plymouth. She discovers one fellow in her apartment and that Mary Murray is that pretty girl who everywhere, except from the Middle West, for she has considerably more than her share of charm and beauty. Perhaps this aided her right upward, but, in any event, she quit Peoria at an early age and came East, determined to go on the stage. She met Edgar Selwyn, the producer, one night at a party. He gave her a small part in "Dancing Mothers," and she was good enough later to get the lead in his road company of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," in which, incidentally, she made her first appearance here in Boston.

Later she was in "Paris Bound" and "Little Accident," and was just seen in the Hub in the "Nine Sisters' Revue."

Included in the cast of the first Louis Wolheim directorial effort for RKO will be Ian Keith, who will appear in addition to Wolheim, Mary Astor and Hugh Herbert.

Screen Shorts

Charles Ruggles, signed for the featured role in "Charlie's Aunt," which marks the return of "Charlie" as a director, is getting ready to start work in this production.

Iring Cummings will direct "The Painted Women." John Wayne, who appears in "The Big Trail," will be given the leading male role.

Educational has cast Marion Stockley for an important part in "Fearing To Go," following her debut in "The Freshman's Coat."

C. R. Bowden has been retained by RKO to supervise the repair of burmesees for the horses in "Clamart," and also exact one of the character roles in the outdoor picture Wesley Ruggles is directing.

PICK FLOWER QUEEN OF HUB

Miss Dorothea Leng was selected by the audience viewing Al Jolson in "Big Boy" at the Washington St. Olympia.

At candidate for "Flower Queen" of the Tercentenary Parade, there were fifty competitors. In addition to a bouquet won by Miss Leng, she won the privilege of appearing in the finals for the Flower Queen of Greater Boston, chosen from among the winners in all the Public Theaters in New England.

More Names Added. Pathe continues to add to the cast of "Sin Takes a Holiday."

Most recent additions are Rita LaRoy, Basil Rathbone, Louis Bartels, Kendall Lee, John Roche, Muriel Finley, Helen Johnson and Fred Walton.

Easy to look at

THERE's a harmony between the natural loveliness of this modern age and the natural, mild goodness of Camels. And if you find them keeping company, don't be surprised.

Camel has given the world the luxury of a naturally mild cigarette—a cigarette that preserves all the refreshing fragrance of the choice, mild tobaccos from which it is made—a cigarette that is delightfully smooth, but never flat, never parched, never tasteless.

Modern smokers are awake to the fact that more flatness doesn't mean mildness. That's one reason there's such a swing to Camel. Watch it right in your own crowd. Join them in Camels—a smoke that's enjoyable all the way—all the time.

Barnstable Committee Over-ruled After Two-Hour Private Session

resume his duties following a two-hour hearing at the State House yesterday, at which the State Teachers' Retirement Board declined to approve the vote of the Barnstable school committee, which would have re-elected him.

During the hearing the public and newspaper representatives were heard. Immediately after the hearing the retirement board went into a rather lengthy executive session after which it announced its decision.

The hearing was held on a petition protesting against Roddy's retirement as voted by the members of the Retirement Board of the Barnstable school board.

COMMITTEE AT HEARING
In voting Boody's retirement the committee alleged that he was incapable of rendering satisfactory service as a teacher. The complete membership of the school committee attended yesterday's hearing and expressed their views on the controversy.

John D. W. Rodfish represented Boody at the hearing.

WILL STIMULATE TRADE
The American believes that a little additional spending on the part of those who can afford to do it would stimulate trade to such an extent that it would not have to buy more goods. When the stores buy more goods the factories must turn out more product. And the factories must employ more of the manufacturers' men who employ more operatives.

Acting as spokesman for the majority members of the group, Chairman Stuart F. Scudder of the Raritan school committee, urged the Raritan Board to approve the committee's resignations. Principal Boody. School Committee member Edward C. Hincley and Sarah E. Sears opposed the Boody retirement.

The controversy in Barnstable school circles has been going now for fully two years. Last July, when Woody went to Europe for a trip, the school committee held a special meeting and voted him a year's leave of absence with salary for the time, sending notice of this

As we start ticklin' the typewriter—neuter gender, Remington portable, we make haste to add, just to keep the muscus from poisoning the warpaint and scalping a couple of blondes—the idea pierces our bony cranium that perhaps you would like to fan a bit today on sport and politicians. O. K. with you? If it ain't, say so. We strive to please and we don't want to bore you. It's your column, not mine. If some of you only would tell a feller once in a while what you like and what you don't like, we would be most grateful. The color loves to know whether you prefer pale pink or dark red, the Mike and violets, which is Beacon Hill for corned beef and cabbage.

The whole flock of governors, mayors, celebrities, dignitaries, and persons famous and infamous here for the Ter. Green Tercentenary—some day we'll twist our tongues around that word and strangle it!—makes something on sport and politics apropos, don't you think?

The idea, suggested to us when we were looking over the list of visiting dignitaries, just to see whether our friend Mayor "Jimmy" Walker, mayor of New York, had accepted the invitation of His Honor, "Llimmy" or rather, James M. Curley, mayor of Boston.

Jimmy Walker, you know gave Broadway back its boxing and the hard working New York fans their Sunday baseball. New Yorkers love him for that. It was the same old story. The same old thing. The same old game. That's anything else responsible for his tremendous popularity and the landladies of jumpy who bury his opponents. James a dyed in the wool. We can't leave a ball game without being as hoarse as a bull-roger with the tonsils, and the crowd would be shouting out leaving the ribs of any other leaver who happen to be sitting beside him black and blue from "Missouri" excited elbow prods.

Royal Rogers, who accompanied the Red Sox to New York in 1919, was a man of many talents. Great, their tickets on the street that he would stop all world series games in Boston if he could. He was a giver. He was the Royal. He was the King. We could go on naming on "Money Fly" all day, but we must keep space for a few others.

Did Terry Win?

Theodore Roosevelt was a great fan. He used the phrase "the fan." "Hit the line hard." "Beep up the ball." "Get a good deal." He lost the sight of one eye boxing. Recently we wrote

Boston's present mayor, James Michael Curley, is addicted to golf and therefore cannot be the one. One of the past mayors, John F. Fitzgerald, is the red hot, real, honest to goodness, all cool and a yard wide, the one who won the '06 Fit? even has Jimmy Walker lashed to the mast. Did Jimmy Walker ever win a world series? No. Did Earl W. Brown and M'om' Well, John F. Fitzgerald did. Want until you get a mayor who can win a world series for you, you New Yorkers, for you're just cringing over us Bostonians.

It was one of the Boston Philadelphia world series conflicts of 1915. The teams went into the seventh or eighth aspin with the score a tie. George "Gooseegaze" Foster, the home pitcher, hammered out a hurri- sine. When he hit second he was puffing like a porpoise and was ready to lay down and die.

"What'll we do?" moaned the Red Sox rosters. "Oh, what'll we do? Goosegoose is so plumb tuckered out that he will not be able to get the ball on to the plate when he goes in the box again, oh, what'll we do?"

Our hero, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, was seized with a singular intuition.

While beating the bully in a wrestling match, Wilson acted as coach of the football team.

We had two great "racing" presidents, Gen. U. S. Grant and Andrew Jackson. Grant and Jackson were more interested in racing in their day than Vice President Curtis is now.

Andrew Jackson once published

His Honor returned to the Royal Roosters Band and blazed:

"Play the Star Spangled Banner! Quick! Play the Star Spangled Banner!"

The Royal Roosters Band broke into the stirring strains of our country's national anthem. The grandstand arose. The game halted. The players took to their seats and gave attention. All the players except Fletcher George Gosselin.

He offered to back uppitcher Ray's throw for $50,000. It was James Douglas Anderson's "making of The American Thor" moked," he writes most interestingly on Old Hickory and President Martin Van Buren. Anderson is an interesting workout of Buirson, as of the great Eclipse.

Did you know that U. S. S. Grant, when President of the United States, was the first to jump out of a big machine continued on Page 18, Column TALKING IT OVER. Capt. Hal Andres, a Newton boy, and Coach Jackson Cannell are discussing plans for tentative scalplings by the Dartmouth Indians during the season of 1930. Harvard and Stanford are among the prospective victims.

A squad of 80 candidates reported to Head Coach Lewis Manly at Tufts today for the initial workout of the season.

In starting practice at this late date, Coach Manly is merely continuing the policies of former Coach Arthur Sampson who left to coach the Columbia backfield this year. Coach Manly is expected to follow the successful Sampson system of very little scrimmaging.

With the wealth of material available, the prospects for a successful season seem brighter than they have since "Fish" Ellis was the galloping ghost of the Tufts grid teams. The first game is carded Oct. 11 with Colby at Medford.

Larry Durgin and Bill Hoffman, two sophomores, have caught on with the varsity. Durgin, who hails from Lewiston, Me., was candidate for a tackle berth on the freshman team a year ago but he did not register to any great extent. By JOE CASHMAN
As a result of beating their arch-rivals in one of the fiercest, closest and most thrilling games ever played anywhere, the miracle Cardinals from St. Louis are today sitting on top of the National League heap by a margin of one point over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

In this part are the 'Cubaz' Cubes, defending champions, who, though slaughtered in the opener of their series with the New York Yankees, look like good ground and are solid but one and a half game men removed from being in the first of the first of the first.

That the battle for the pennant will be a fight right down to the end, which is only 10 days away, was clearly shown in the first Rube-Cardie battle.

Rube had a so-called crucial game furnished good baseball or play may thrill. Usually a team or the other in these all-participation is cracks, and a hard score is the result.

Billie 10-Inning Game

The second City athletes scored the first run in the rubber game, but lost in the tenth. It looked like the finish for the Robins and that, but not before they had filled the seats with one out in the half and tossed a scare into the hearts of the doubting Thomases a bit in the two remaining games. Expected to prove even better, they lived up to expectations and more. There was next to nothing to choose between the two teams. Brooklyn played completely and well in the next two games, which is improbable, the rivals seem certain to battle it out to the bitter end with the chances of the rubber ending in a dead heat being better than even.

Braddock Picked to Beat Mercurio in Garden Bout

GALLAGHER DANIELS

Jimmy Braddock has been installed a favorite in the early betting for his 10-round bout with Phil Mercurio of New York which will be staged at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Braddock showed good form in both of his Boston bouts. He outscored Joe Monte by a wide margin, while he lost a close battle to Ray Hunt.

Charley Harvey, veteran handler of boxers, will come in town with Mercurio. Harvey piloted Tom Heary when the latter eluded with Gene Tunney. He has high hopes for Mercurio.

Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavy weight, and Marty Gallagher of Roxbury will mingle in another tremendous event. Daniels has beat in most of the opposition that has been sent against him in Western rings.

Gagnon Offers to Bet $500 He Will Win

These are a few of the commercial boxing it was interesting to hear that Jack Gagnon is willing to make a stake of $500 that he can defeat Al Friedman when they meet at the Arena a week from tomorrow night. Gagnon has always been long on confidence. He accepted a $1000 bet for his end of the purse for his first meeting with Friedman. He came through with a knockout and picked up $1000 for the return match with Griffiths in Chicago.

Crohan made his letter as a stand during the fall of his sophomore year and last season was a regular flank unit for the team.

After a sensational season two years ago, Bill McGowan was forced to withdraw from college but he returned last fall, only to get out on the sidelines and watch having sufficient credits to be eligible.

McGowan is a guard and make no mistake about it. He is a big, fast, and powerful. There is a regular flank unit in the game capable of coming out of the line as quickly as McGowan, and few back the power of the 135 freshman captain.

Pair of Local Boys on Second Team

There are four sophomores on Team B. Thompson, end, and star, Art Connolly, from Swampscott, Jack Donohue, end, from Wood, who wound up his prep school days at Exeter and Bristol, a product of Union, N. H.

All four are good variety material, especially Thompson, who is a quarterback and one of the best players and leaders on the team. Connolly gave a fine account of himself as end and was a star at Exeter.

The remaining six newcomers are at present with team C, but it is going to require some time to keep them that far from the varsity. When Medford High boys, Forrest Rensch and Joe Robinson, are working out with the guards,

There is little doubt but that the champions are all shot and are in danger of being beaten out for third place by the Phils.

Brooklyn Can Regain Lead by Winning Today

Brooklyn can go back to the top by winning today and can still remain in a virtual tie for the lead by splitting the two remaining games with the Braves.

The two extra games the Cards have to play will make them slight favorites in triumph eventually, if they can take one of the next two ties and remain on top, but it must be remembered that these extra games will have the Phils a club that has beaten the Red Sox 12 times in 18 starts to date this season.

Mr. Boston says baseball is far from being dead. He does not believe the national pastime is even sick.

"I breezed through Newspaper News as the Cards and Dodgers battled in the first game of their crucial series," asserted Mr. Boston. "I found the boys who have the ball down in the front lawn by picking men winners than losers all talking about the battle for the league's supremacy."

"It's a pity," he said, "that the boys Jack Conway who set on baseball games to let their own ride on a star play style and you will find that Boston is still the hub of the baseball universe."

"I'm going to keep tuned in on Ebbets Field, Brooklyn."

B.C. HIGH IN EXHIBITION

By BILL CONNELL
Boston College high and Duxbury high grid teams will line up at Franklin Field tomorrow in a special football exhibition as a part of the tercentenary celebration.

Neither team has had a chance to get in much practice, but they will run through a few plays and attempt to give the spectators some idea of the game as now played by the schools.

There will be no actual scrimmaging, for the teams are not yet in good playing condition.

Most of the B.C. football team is made up of freshmen and sophomores. The Duxbury team is composed of juniors and seniors.

Both teams have been practicing for several weeks, and several players have been injured.

Bill Connell, who would have been ineligible to play for the Maroon and Gold this year, is a member of the B.C. team.

B.C. high makes its exhibition conform to the regulations of the Headmasters' Association, and the Duxbury team is a member of the same association.

Both teams are expected to give a good exhibition of the game.

Miniature Golf Courses Are Crowded by Contestants

Beautiful weather brought thousands of people to play and witness tournament games in the Boston Evening American miniature golf tourney over selected courses yesterday.

Many youngsters were numbered among the contestants.

The fact that there is ample free parking space for automobiles near all of the courses is a factor in drawing the crowds.

Colored golf balls, used on every course, are a great aid in playing, especially in the case of a tournament where the players are to follow their own balls without any chance of confusion.

The sport is attracting many elderly people, as the game is less fatiguing than playing regular golf.

Many people who look advantage of the weather to go to the beach are on the courses at Woburn, Lynn and Beach Boulevard at Woburn.

The courses at East Acton and Concord were well crowded.

Gertrude Vanderberg, of the firm of Horton and Morgan, and J. H. Morgan, of the same firm, were on the course at Lynn Fellowship, corner of South Main st.

Listen, World! No Such Animal as Humble Lover

He Admits No Peer in His Affections

By ELSIE ROBINSON

FUNNY how we are about love. We may be, and frequently are, the world's worst flaps in every other department of our lives but just let anyone try and tell us that we aren't one of the Great Lovers of history and we'll tell you they get off! Who is so proud that phrase—'humble lover'?

Whoever did it was a merely mouthing fool. There is no humbler creature on earth than a lover. I want a peek at it through the bars they ever confess that they know.

Elsie Robinson: A man may be a fool, a coward, a liar, a ruffian in morals, a pig as to personal habits. He may even concede these facts. But when it comes to love, he admits no flaw. He is positive that Dante, Romeo and Valentino have nothing on him. And he expects life-long admiration and gratitude from the object of his affection. If preface she should fail to share his enthusiasm and show her preference for another, he feels quite justified in shouting her love. For doesn't he "love" her? Then how dare she cast toward him?

Or consider injured wives whose husbands' interests have averaged. Do they ever confess that they themselves are partly to blame for such delinquency? Do they acknowledge that they've done something amiss with the quality of their love? Far from it! Invariably they insist that they were "Perfect Victims and the Other Woman."

Or take a bride. As daughter or employee she may have been, but as a wife, she is a different creature. Love is supposed to be something apart from all other human experience—a "divine condition" which places the married couple on a level with a king. Have we not heard of the "divine madness" of it? It is subject to the regular tests and controls which govern our other conduct? No, indeed! It transcends upon its, red-hot and complete. And the source is identical with each one of us, regardless of our mental or physical qualities, whether they be sage or sinner, or under special conditions.

And it is a sacrifice to doubt the beauty, wisdom and heavenly origin of love. It is a sacrifice to doubt the beauty, wisdom and heavenly origin of love. It is a sacrifice to doubt the beauty, wisdom and heavenly origin of love.

Such is the ideal tradition concerning love. It is a tradition which has made it the most beautiful and the most difficult of all human experiences.

It is a tradition which has made it the most beautiful and the most difficult of all human experiences. It is a tradition which has made it the most beautiful and the most difficult of all human experiences.

What's in Fashion? Wider Shoulder Effects

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

EVOLUTION will have its way.

And if you don't believe it, notice who's happened to the shoulder line of dresses during the last few seasons. And why? Remember when dresses were short and straight and tubular, with narrow skirts and little shoulders? Then skirts grew longer and fuller. And the plain shoulder did not look right. It left the top of the silhouette too narrow for the lower part.

Need Shoulder Width

Now it's fall. And again shoulders are still long and easy.

And here's where evolution took a hand—just as surely as gave fish gills so they can breathe in the water.

It left some reminders of the cape. Sleeve caps for one thing. Just a short cape from the front of the shoulder to the back, as it is sketched at left. They give the shoulder the wider look it needs. And they tuck right down the armhole of the coat neatly, comfortably and fashionably.

Berthas and Frills

Then there are berthas and bertha effects. They're shorter than the spriguing cape. And easier to fit under the coat.

Sometimes these berthas effects are just deep frills at the neck in the skirt. They're just as youthful and becoming as the cape and give the feeling of right balance to the figure.

Deep Yokes

You can see one of these in the sketch at right. They're just as youthful and becoming as the cape and give the feeling of right balance to the figure.

IN EVERY woman's life there comes a time when just the right thing said or done means uprightness and creates, as it were, a bond which is never broken.

These times frequently come in the form of a little crisis, a crisis of conscience, a crisis of courage, a crisis of faith.

World's Biggest Business Buys Raw Materials

Am. Telephone Analyzes Prices as Attractive; Robinson Here

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 17.—I am delighted to be able to report so liberally that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has attracted by the extraordinary low prices of raw materials, started plans for future deliveries of raw materials.

This is a commendable move, not least for carrying significance to business circles throughout the country because American Telephone is not only a leading enterprise in America.

When it buys the capital expenditures enormously exceed those of any other enterprise in the world. This year it is spending more than half of its total capital expenditures of all American railroads combined, and more than half of all other American railroads put together.

President Walter S. Gifford, in the famous Hoover Conference, stated that the Bell System planned expenditures last year aggregating $100,000,000. And I understand that this figure may be exceeded.

The addition to the Bell System's assets this year is actually greater than the total resources of all the few of our largest industrial concerns. The system's total assets are rapidly passing the four-and-a-half billion mark.

Twice the assets of the United States Steel Corporation and fully three times the assets of General Motors.

American Telephone and its associated companies employ far more people than any other business on the face of the earth, upwards of 300,000. Its subsidiary, Western Electric, has as many employees as General Electric. American Telephone is owned by more than 300,000 stockholders and has, in addition, a large number of bonds outstanding.

Although less widely known than other corporate enterprises, Walter Gifford is recognized in the financial circles as a man of affairs and financial genius. He is one of the five men who are at the head of the five great American banks that George F. Baker chose as First National Bank directors.

SHOE INDUSTRY TAKES MAPLE ORCHARDS

By FRANK H. MCELROY

Comparatively few people are aware that the shoe industry is having an effect on the production of maple sugar and syrup. We are told, however, that scores of large orchards in Vermont and other sections of New England are falling under the possible axe of the shoe industry.

It is said that the maple trees are being cut down for the production of maple sugar and syrup. The shoe industry is said to be the cause of this.

President Lincoln B. Bailey of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers calls for the retention of the shoe industry.

It has long been known that the shoe industry is a major factor in the economy of New England.

Washington announcement that the Tom Thumb golf club has been called for the sale of cotton textiles indicates a new move for the shoe industry.

We have the opinion expressed that the shoe industry is a major factor in the economy of New England.

There is very general agreement in Rhode Island circles that the end of the decline in commodity prices would be of widespread benefit.

When, therefore, the American shoe industry is in a position to pay dividends that pepper and other raw materials it uses in its production, it is a source of great interest to the shoe industry.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Bullish breakers point out that an astoundingly large number of commodities are selling below the cost of production.

When it buys the capital expenditures enormously exceed those of any other enterprise in the world. This year it is spending more than half of its total capital expenditures of all American railroads combined, and more than half of all other American railroads put together.

President Walter S. Gifford, in the famous Hoover Conference, stated that the Bell System planned expenditures last year aggregating $100,000,000. And I understand that this figure may be exceeded.

The addition to the Bell System's assets this year is actually greater than the total resources of all the few of our largest industrial concerns. The system's total assets are rapidly passing the four-and-a-half billion mark.

Although less widely known than other corporate enterprises, Walter Gifford is recognized in the financial circles as a man of affairs and financial genius. He is one of the five men who are at the head of the five great American banks that George F. Baker chose as First National Bank directors.

LOS ANGELES' STOCK SALES ARE STUDIED

Los Angeles, Sept. 17.—A survey of the distribution of daily volume on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange reveals that of the 11 one-half hour periods during the trading day, the greatest percentage of sales occur during the periods following the close of the New York and other Eastern markets, and particularly during the last half-hour, according to F. E. Sanford, secretary and manager of the exchange.

With the regular difference in time, in addition to the slight saving plan in effect in New York, market operations may be continued for three and one-half hours on the local exchange in 55 seconds for the additional trading hours after the close of the New York market.

While some of the trading throughout the entire day originates in the East, the increase in volume during the second half of the trading session can be directly attributed to the shift of market operations to the Pacific coast for the additional trading hours after the close of the New York market.

A prominent wire house advised its clients that the selling has been for trading purposes and was not based on the belief that the market would sell lower over a period of time.

A popular low-priced trading medium with sales in American $500's. The other bidders were Tiedler & Co., Standard Sanitary Corp., a holding company for American Radiator, Standard Sanitary, Murray Radiator, Campbell Metal Window Co., Thomas Madnick & Sons, Teller Bros., and the majority stock of C. F. Church Manufacturing Co.

On March 1 the company had 100,000 shares of $500's and cash on hand was $1,758,000. Current assets were $24,262,653 and current liabilities $14,726,719, a ratio of better than six to one. The book value of the stock is $104 and the dividend of $10 shows a return of 8 per cent at 1 1/2.

A showed observer noting the strength in United Shoe, on the Boston board, points out that the people of this section realize the worth of some local securities. The stock has moved in a 15 point range during 1930, but 18 1/2.

Current yield, on the $2.50 regular dividend, at $45, is about 5.5 per cent; taking the extra dividend of 51 cents consideration it is better than 6 per cent.

Bond Redemption. To permit city and county of San Francisco to redeem the $1,000,000 Sprague Valley Water Co. bonds, the city approved consolidation into $1,000,000 bonds of the initial bond through sale of assets in exchange for the bonds.

Merger is Approved. Rockwood & Co. S. S. Shreve Corp. and U. S. Shreve Financial Corp. approved consolidation into $1,000,000 bonds of the initial bond through sale of assets in exchange for the bonds.

HOW'S BUSINESS? ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Sales Books Show Retailers' Attitude

"Sales books" are used by a variety of retail shops to record and identify sales for both the customer and the store. In addition to department and dry goods shops, these stores compile their selling sales, men's clothing and furnishings, dresses, hosiery, hats, millinery, hardware, groceries, meat, radios, stationery, etc. Chart shows the number of books shipped direct to these stores in the first seven months of 1930 and the corresponding periods of the past nine years.

The number of sales books shipped monthly to hundreds of thousands of stores is a fair index to the fluctuations in the number of transactions. But they are shown here for a different reason. In this day of close economies and hand-to-mouth buying, it is believed that these shipments serve as an excellent indicator of the retailers' attitude toward future business conditions because the books must be ordered several weeks before they are needed.

Boston, Founded 300 Years Ago as a City Upon a Hill, Birthplace of Liberty—Let Us Preserve It!

EXACTLY 300 years ago today the city of Boston was settled by the Puritans.

Governor John Winthrop surveyed the scene of their great adventure, fraught with dangers and uncertainty.

"We must consider that we shall be as a city upon a hill," he warned them. "The eyes of the people are upon us."

"If we deal falsely in this work we have undertaken, we shall be made a story and a byword throughout the world."

The Puritans braved the uncertainties of the capricious elements and the perils of the sea to achieve their experiment.

"For nine long, dreary weeks, they were tossed by waves and buffeted by winds."

During the first five years here, they were never free from the menace of starvation.

"Food was so scarce that the poorer people had nothing save acorns, clams and mussels to eat."

"On the first day of January, every man, woman and child in the Bay Colony spent his or her time praying to the Lord to save them from hunger."

They built their thatched houses against the rigors of the New England winters. They hewed the forest and eked a scant living out of the soil. They contested the aborigine to their west and the malice and jealousy of a vernal monarchy to their east.

Out of their heroic endeavors and fortitude, out of their simple democratic statesmanship, came free government and education.

THEY CREATED the first enduring system of free public schools, with compulsory education.

THEY INSTITUTED Harvard College, the first establishment of higher education on the American Continent.

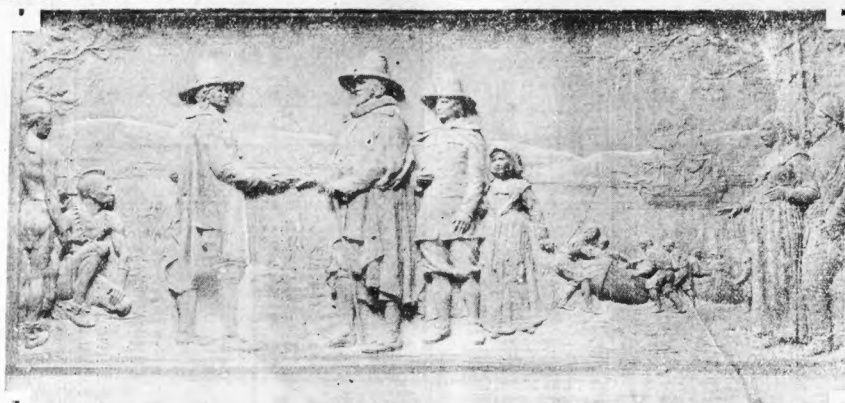

THEY DEvised the town meeting, which Bryce still found more than 200 years later to be the finest conception of pure democracy in the world.

THEY LAUNCHED the bicameral system of government, predicated upon the theory that just government derives its existence from the consent of the governed.

THEY DROVE from their shores the agents of the Crown sent here to rule them in defiance of their will.

THEY REFUSED with patriotic obduracy to pay the salaries of despots imposed upon them, just as their patriotic descendants, 145 years later, refused with valor to accede to the offensive stamp and tax imposts and the despised Writs of Assistance.

THEY DEFIED James and

HERE, IN THE conception of Paramino, the sculptor, is the Boston of 1630. This Founder's plaque is a part of the tercentenary memorial in Boston Common, dedicated yesterday. Gov. John Winthrop, Rev. John Wilson and little Anne Pollard, the first child of white birth on the North American Continent, are welcomed by William Blaxton to Boston. The place of the three hills, Tri-Mountain, now Boston, affords the water in reply which the Puritans must have to survive the ardors of hunger and thirst. The Indians, now friends, now foes, look on quizzically, and with doubt. Their minds are innocent of the fact that here the great Adventure is born—the struggle for freedom.

HERE IS THE BOSTON OF 1930. It was photographed from the air, a fact which, together with its massive structures and giant ocean liners, unlike the modest Arvella, could confound not only the Indians, but Winthrop as well. The City Upon a Hill is Boston; the Athens of America, birthplace of free education. As you contemplate the extraordinary chance from 1630 to 1930 you are impressed by the most salient fact of all—that freedom of thought, of ideals, of government, unleashed the energy which made all this possible. (Fairchild photo.)

Charles and gave birth to the spirit of independence which Franklin, the Adamant and Hancock emulated when they defied the despotic mandates of George.

Out of this mutual suffering of the Puritans and their inheritors, out of this spirit of mutual dependence and of independence, came the America of today.

It is an America of mutual union of 48 independent States, welded together as a common country for their common interests and common protection.

It is an America conceived and liberated in that policy of independence which means friendly intercourse with all Nations, entangling political alliances with none of them.

It is the America in which has been imbedded the practical experience that sensible self-interest, sensible precaution is the best and only guarantee of national safety.

America, by her democratic political philosophy and by her industry, unfettered by enmeshing foreign ties, has become the political asylum of the oppressed and the land of opportunity for the ambitious.

From every clime and every country, peoples have come in the wake of the Puritans to achieve freedom from persecution, the benefits of equality under the law and the material fortunes which can be accumulated under such auspices.

In the pictures which decorate this page may be seen the results.

In one, the desolate, uncultivated, undeveloped territory to which Winthrop and the Puritans dedicated their indomitable will.

In the other, the Boston of the modern world, the capital of a commonwealth of 4,000,000 people in a Nation of 125,000,000 who have accomplished in the relatively brief span of 300 years a material dominion unprecedented in all history.

From Winthrop to Washington to Roosevelt, the great Americans who have been entrusted with the leadership of this Nation, without variation, clung with patriotism to the ideals of independence which have made these marvelous results possible of accomplishment.

They rejected the selfish and allurement, they resisted the international intrigues and the seductions to their own vanities.

They followed the straight and narrow, and at times difficult, path which led America to her destiny and which made her the envy of the jealous and the beacon light of the oppressed peoples of the world.

Away from us, let us be faithful to this course.

What Winthrop and their successors won for us, can be lost by us by duplicity, by favoring by negligence to their ideals of independence.

As they fought against starvation, we can overcome the temporary business depression by our own initiative.

By the same means who best resist the danger of the problems which for the day seem serious but which will ultimately vanish like the dew before the sun.

But the life of a Nation once lost to us by the ineptitude of anserous politicians, by the silly idealism of glib pacifists or by the unattractive devices of moribund interventionists would be impossible of revival.

In these international pulvis, let us be reminded by Winthrop that we are the city on the hill and that we deal falsely and unpatriotically with the work of independence which they began we would become a byword throughout the world rather than the Boston, cradle of American liberty, respected and admired.

New York Day-by-Day

Sentiment Will Save "Church Around Corner"

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Sentiment alone—an emotion flinty Manhattan is reputed to lack—will save "The Little Church Around the Corner" from the voraciousness of the building destroyers.

Although it has stood in mellow glory 17 years, presently the scraper promoters are after the site.

Already a head around fund is being raised to preserve the sanctuary. It turned out of the boiling arena a hub-bub yesterday and a few steps reached this classically heaven of amazing tranquility.

A cloud of white pigeons whirled above the cross. Ray, the millioned windows glinted rainbow serenity.

In actual name is the Church of the Transfiguration, but Joseph Jefferson, the actor, bestowed the title by which it is known. George Holland, a kindly actor, was refused burial service at a neighboring church. Jefferson was told: "The little church around the corner will do it."

In his grief, he choked: "Then God bless this little church around the corner." Henry's last rites were spoken there. It is one of the most popular marrying places in all the city, the sidewalk being constantly sprinkled with rice and the gutter with a hurried good luck slipper or so.

In springing its front garden, slit with cool brick walls, is bright with the verge of fragrant jonquils. Inside is an ecclesiastical "Green Room" for actors. The pew of Lester Wallace is preserved. Its pastor for nine years has been the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, from Dallas, Tex., a humanitarian shackled by ecclesiasticism. During unemployment crisis, Dr. Ray led a headline at his gates that totaled 75,000 storm-tossed souls. He frequently turns away the Transfiguration, but Joseph Jefferson, the actor, bestowed the title by which it is known. George sprinkle of stage and screen personalities. . . .

As a fairly obliging ciccone for out-of-town friends I find "The Little Church" is almost invariably among the first three places total strangers wish to see—the other two being the Broadway lights and Central Park. It will be a pity if the church has to go.

I know a gentleman, the unctuous rascal, who always rides quickly to the floor he desires to skip scraper elevators—and alone. When a car reaches the ground floor and effects passengers he whispers to the starter: "I'm nauseated. Please raise the operator to rush me to—naming the floor desired. It never fails to click and we hope some day they make him prove his assertion right there before all the people."

R. R. F. writes in to inquire what I think of H. L. Menckens's Pan-American policy. The back of my neck to him. He can tell him himself. It is about the 34th variation of their own. There is no fun panning Menckens, anyway. He takes it too graciously.

At 38th st. and Park ave. at 7:15 last night by a sturdy Carrier wrist watch, a lady with a Gay Ninety pug dog, even to the red ribbon neck bow, went ambling by. The dog waddled with a f.i.t. whizzed from a.s.h.m.s. had bulbulous eyes and a tightly twisted cork-screw tail. I rushed into a nearby apartment house, dragged Corney Ry. Cooper out to see, but it was gone. Policemen at three adjacent corners said they had not seen it. It wouldn't surprise me if I am not even in New York.

If anyone, however, seriously doubts I did not see that pug dog I will gladly furnish the badge numbers of the policemen I summoned, my reason for being in the neighborhood at that particular time and a sock on the eye. Copyright, 1930, King Features synd. Inc.

Science of Life

Extension of

By H. G. Wells

EVEN IF the work on rejuvenation has not opened up any vista of perpetual youth, it holds forth promise of a reason able extension of healthy middle age.

It does not more than provide a convenient source of male sex hormone.

Every time a man or woman takes a synthetic hormone tablet, he is using synthetic hormone prepared for him by a shop; but he does not become sheep-like in consequence. If the male sex-hormone could be in period or given in tablet form, grafting would be unnecessary; but until it has been chemically isolated, grafting is one of the few available methods.

Those who wish to prevent testis-grafting should start a campaign against the use of insulin, thyroid, pituitary and adrenalin.

3. IS HUMAN REJUVENATION DESIRABLE?

Arising out of this discussion is the very interesting question whether there would be any advantage at all either for the individuals concerned or for the species, in prolonging the lives of men and women of the current type very much beyond eighty years.

At the end of that time it is open to question whether there is anything more for the man temporarily old to do that could not be done better by younger people or whether the pleasure and entertainment they will still draw from life will compensate them for the labor of continuing.

Most old people become very philosophical about death; few regard the final cessation of existence with the terror it has for the young. They tire. They have seen the show.

Health-conscious who paid some special attention to the subject, concluded that in the very old, those who were doing well of disease out of their old age, there existed a desire for death as natural and normal as the desire for sleep at the end of a long day.

We have already noted that the fully developed brain and nervous system have a fixed number of nerve-cells. We know no way of increasing them.
